TO MAKE ENTIRE STATE DRY

Pesters, Window Displays, House to House Canvase and Flying Squadrens Part of Extensive Program Mapped Out For Young Workers

Columbus, O.-This year's campaign for state-wide prohibition promises to bring the young people of Ohio into action in a way unprecedented in the history of the state. Daniel A. Poling, who for several years was general secretary of the Christian Endeavorers of Ohio, has outlined a plan which will actively engage the interest of the tens of thousands of young men and women in that great organ-

It is the purpose that every local society and every organized Bible class shall erect and maintain at least one temperance poster board. The posters are to be changed frequently. Euch boards will be used on church lawns and on private grounds. Window cards will also be distributed.

Saturday, Oct. 31, is to be Ohio Poster day, and the young people of the state will literally cover the commonwealth with posters, handbills and cards, calling attention to the election on the following Tuesday. Trees, fences, buildings, watering troughs and windows of homes and stores will be placarded. Particularly attention will be given to window displays and exhibitions throughout the

It is proposed to have a number of junior kite flying contests through the month of October. Rewards will be given boys who will make kites and keep them flying. These kites will float advertising banners, bearing some slogan of the campaign. These young people will also organize for a house to house literature canvass. Literature will be distributed to all the homes. During the month of October this house to house visitation will be make weekly.

It is expected that in every county a flying squadron will be organized. composed of a quartet, a reader, and one or two speakers. A cornetist will accompany the group to help gather a crowd. Meetings will be held in halls, schoolhouses and churches, but most of them are expected to be held in the open air, and addresses will be made from automobiles and platforms, on street corners and in parks. Throughout all these various avenues of activity the young people will keep first in mind the distribution of campaign literature, and will make the most of the personal touch which comes from the house to house visita-

It is anticipated that the campaign as executed by the young men and women of the state will not only be exceedingly truitful in res

Before Governor Cox, through legislative action, made this bureau a separate department, about $27,000 of this amount came from the taxpayers through the general fund. This year, however, it is self-sustaining, so far as the taxpayers are concerned, as the building and loan associations of the state support it. Under the provisions of a bill passed last year, each association must pay a fee of $20 with the filing of its annual report, which this year will net the state more than $13,000. In addition ing homes. to this, there is another fee based on the assets of the associations, which will bring the total revenue up to more than enough to pay all the operating expenses of the bureau.

At the beginning of 1913 there were 649 building and loan associations in Ohio, and the year 1914 started off with 667, an increase of 16. The average anni al increase in assets is about thoughtfulness, but by state official? $12,000,000), the total assets last year and building and loan association offibeing $235, 100,000.

These associations hold more than 5,600 mortgage loans, representing in money more than $12,000,000.

By his active interest in the management of building and loan associations, by his recommendations to the legislature of laws to protect depositors and his close supervision of the associations through the state bureau. Governor Cox has accomplished a won derful work in safeguarding the sav ings of thousands of small depositors especially the farmers, who are buy

And all this is now dene without taking one cent from the pockets of the taxpayers for the maintenance of the state bureau of building and loan associations.
